Air Antilles : last chance for rescue

Placed in judicial recovery in early February, Air Antilles is fighting for its survival before the mixed commercial court of Pointe-à-Pitre. Only one recovery offer is currently being examined, presented by Guadeloupean entrepreneur Pierre Sainte-Luce. The court will render its decision on March 5.

On its opening judgment of the proceedings, the mixed commercial court of Pointe-à-Pitre set the cessation of payments for December 9, 2025, the date on which the planes were grounded by decision of the General Directorate of Civil Aviation (DGAC). The court found that the company was «unable to meet its liabilities with its available assets» and was facing a «particularly degraded» cash flow. Despite this finding, a six-month observation period was granted, with the judges considering that a recovery perspective remained possible.

ONLY ONE OFFER FOR TAKEOVER STILL IN THE RUNNING

Several takeover offers have been submitted to the judicial administrator. The identity of the investors has not been disclosed, but their projects seem to have failed to convince or only involved a partial buyout of the fleet. Therefore, only one proposal remains under consideration, that of Pierre Sainte-Luce, known in Saint-Martin through the Wataki clinic, inaugurated on January 29. The Guadeloupean businessman is indeed better known in the health sector than in the aeronautics field, although he is a pilot. His proposal, reviewed during the hearing on February 19 by the mixed commercial court of Pointe-à-Pitre, was deemed serious but is not yet fully developed. According to our colleagues at Guadeloupe La 1re, the businessman would propose, with the support of a group of investors, to inject €10 million into the company, of which €4 million would be immediate.

THREE WEEKS TO CONVINCE

Considering that the project still needed to be consolidated, the court granted an additional deadline, and the examination of the case was postponed to March 5. Pierre Sainte-Luce must provide additional guarantees by then, particularly in terms of financing, fleet, and social organization. The judges also expect clarifications on the project's capacity to take back all or part of the 117 employees. If the project is not deemed sufficiently solid by the judges on March 5, the liquidation of the company will be pronounced. In the event that the takeover project is deemed acceptable, all procedures with the DGAC will still need to be completed, as the company currently has no operating license or air carrier certificate.

Tinted windows : the law, yes, but for whom?

The tinting of car windows is everywhere on the island: a normalized habit, an infraction that has become invisible. The regulations exist, they are clear, and the penalties are too. So why do we feel that they are not really enforced?

Example of the visible light transmission rate

At the edge of certain vehicles, a total mystery. Outside, an infraction that no longer shocks anyone. Tinted windows are becoming increasingly common, and not just in the back. Some cars display levels of opacity such that it is impossible to tell if there is even a driver on board. A situation that raises questions, both in terms of road safety and respect for the law.

WHAT THE LAW SAYS

French regulations are, however, unambiguous. All windows located in the direct line of sight of the driver, including the windshield and front side windows, must allow a minimum of 70% of visible light to pass through, which means a maximum opacity rate of 30%. Any exceedance of this threshold exposes the driver to a fine of €135 and a loss of 3 points on their driving license, if it was not issued by the Collectivity of Saint-Martin. During the technical inspection, a non-compliant vehicle is simply refused, with a mandatory re-inspection. Note: the rear windows are not subject to any specific restrictions, provided that the vehicle is equipped with functional exterior mirrors.

TWO ROOMS TWO ATMOSPHERES

The Dutch part of the island has addressed the issue in its own way. The police regularly conduct targeted operations: removal of non-compliant films, immobilization of vehicles in violation, arrests. The checks are visible, acknowledged, and intended to be deterrent. Is the same rigor applied in the French part of the island? Are checks taking place? Are operations planned? When asked about the subject, local authorities did not respond to our requests. In the absence of a response, the question remains open, and the windows, quite opaque.

Territorial Youth Council: new term

The official youth body of the Community will soon change its leadership. All young people who wish to get involved in the life of the territory and represent the voice of youth can apply.

Created in December 2008, the CTJSM is a representative assembly of middle school students, high school students, and young professionals in the area. It allows elected youth to discover the workings and activities of the territorial institution and to promote projects that matter to them. It aims to encourage civic participation among young people and to involve them in local social and political life. The CTJSM is made up of 23 members elected for two years. It operates like any official body with a president, vice presidents, engaged members, and committees responsible for specific themes. Together, they mobilize on numerous projects, meet their counterparts from the Dutch side, represent young people at official events, support charitable operations, initiate sports, cultural, environmental projects, etc.

To run, you must be between 14 and 25 years old and register before March 12. Information: ctjasm@com-saint-martin.fr or +590 590 87 50 04.

A final little trip to the Carnival ...

AWARDING OF PRIZES TO THE CARNIVAL TROOPS

After an unforgettable season, marked by the energy, creativity, and authentic vibes of the island, the Carnival Committee announced the official winners...

The jury prize for best choreography was awarded to Bacchanal Storm (300 points!), ahead of Uforik Mas (257 points) and Kisekeya (233 points). Although the official competition focused solely on the choreographies during the parades, the jury wanted to highlight all the participating troops, which numbered seven this year. They therefore awarded the solidarity prize to Origin'All, the originality prize to SKS (Soualiwomen Kultural Association), the creativity prize to Hot N Spicy, the encouragement prize to SXM Mas, the «Rising Star» prize to Exotic Vortex, and the special jury prize to Kisekeya.

While these prizes are purely honorary, they primarily acknowledge the work of each participant in both the creation of their costumes and the energy expended to brilliantly animate this 2026 edition of the Carnival.

ON HORSEBACK AND IN FEATHERS...

The Ranch du Galion also held its carnival. On Saturday afternoon, riders and mounts, adorned in their finest attire, put on a colorful show during a most original parade at Baie Orientale. A joyful and unexpected parade that delighted both tourists and residents. Under the leadership of Jessica and with limited resources this year, volunteers, parents, and children rolled up their sleeves to create the sublime costumes (with a little help from the Hot N Spicy troupe, of course!) and to paint the horses and ponies. In light of the success of this lovely spectacle, the goal is to renew the experience next year, this time with more resources and participants to put even more stars in everyone's eyes! A.B

Was the main focus of the Whale Festival organized last Sunday at Orient Bay by the EDEN-I association and WindAdventure, with the participation of My School My Whale and the AGRNSM (Nature Reserve). The most enthusiastic about this festival were the children, which bodes well for the future of the planet. They were thrilled to participate in activities and events centered around cetaceans and marine biodiversity. Themed face painting, drawing contests, and especially virtual reality headsets allowed them to immerse themselves in the marine world for an afternoon. The adults, on the other hand, were able to engage with the various partners present, all committed to the protection of the marine environment. The day concluded with a conference at the Chapel Theater, addressing cetaceans as well as the regulations in force in the AGOA sanctuary and the Nature Reserve. Regulations that some tend to overlook to profit from the presence of

When Trials Awaken

It took two years of writing, maturation, and undoubtedly also some inner silence, for this book to come to life. Two years to put on paper fragments of life, moments of awareness, impulses, and falls as well. Two years to answer a question that many ask without always daring to articulate it: how to transform the challenges of existence into a path of awakening and inner freedom?

Rejection, loss, loneliness, illness, betrayals, injustices... Through fifty trials, universal or intimate, modern, relational, or deeply introspective, the author puts words to these shocks that, sooner or later, we all go through. Each chapter follows the same rhythm: a sincere narrative, an unflinching emotional analysis, an anchoring phrase like a fixed point in the storm, then an invitation to meditate, to feel, to refocus. Nothing prescriptive. Nothing imposed. Suggestions that each person can adapt to their own challenges. This book can be read in one go or left on your bedside table to dip into, chapter by chapter, as needed. This is undoubtedly its strength: to respond to that precise moment when one seeks to understand what the trial has come to teach us. And how, sometimes, it can help us find the thread of a life a bit lost. Sabrina Placidou offers a philosophy of life that has clearly worked for her. A philosophy rooted in resilience, in the conscious choice of self, in the ability to transform impact into leverage. And that feels good. The book is on sale (€20.70) at the Concordia bookstore, at Nawak (route de l'Espérance in Grand Case), and at Top Carrot in Simpson Bay. A must-read without delay, as a new book is already in preparation and will be released on March 8, on the occasion of International Women's Rights Day. A.B

The Tiny Lib Opens Its Doors

In Marigot, a micro-library has just opened at 20 Rue de la République. Supported by the Coffee and Soda Biscuits association, the Tiny Lib offers all residents — young and old — free access to books.

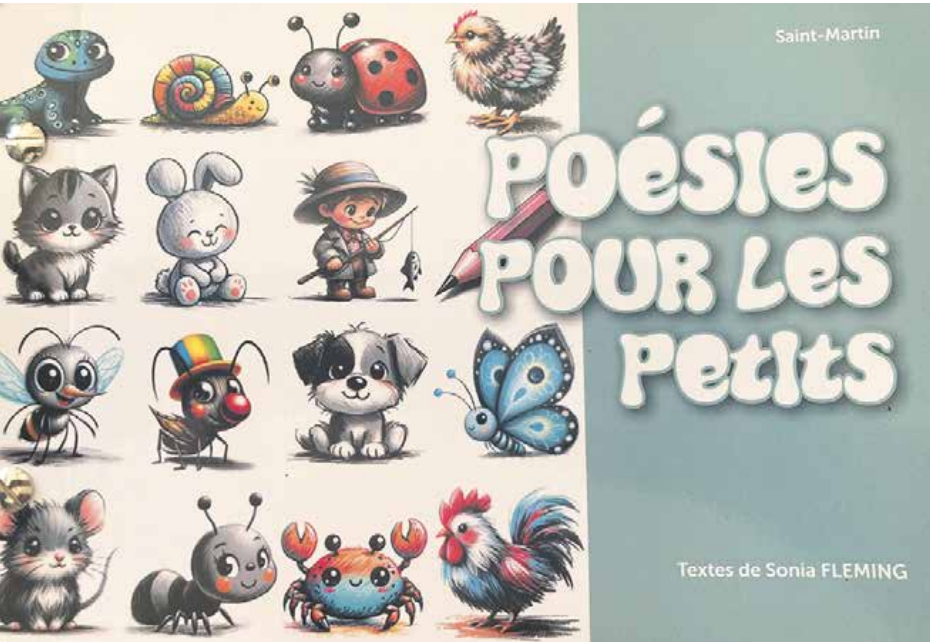

Needing a call for projects launched by Libraries Without Borders and supported by the DRAC of Guadeloupe and the Collectivity of Saint Martin, the Tiny Lib project was selected at the end of 2024. Approximately 1,500 works in French and English then joined the shelves of the space, covering all audiences: picture books for young children, novels, mangas and comic books, as well as documentaries and novels for adults. The objective is clear: to combat illiteracy and excessive screen exposure among young people by providing them with an accessible and friendly alternative. The library opens on Mondays and Fridays from 5 PM to 7 PM, and registration, book searches, and catalog consultation are available directly through the online site. Annual subscriptions are set at €5 for children and €10 for adults. A CULTURAL SPACE THAT GOES WELL BEYOND BOOKS The space is not limited to reading. It also hosts The Poet's Corner, a space dedicated to poetry, writing workshops, and artistic exhibitions for local creators and photographers. The grand official inauguration has not yet taken place, but Sabrina Charville, president of the Coffee and Soda Biscuits association, is calling for support: volunteers, artists, and reading enthusiasts are welcome to help bring this unique cultural project to life in Saint Martin. S.M

Favorite: Poems for Little Ones by Sonia Fleming

Sonia Fleming's poetry knows no age. It touches all hearts, whether they are «small» or «large,» with the sweetness of her words and the depth of her themes. With «Poems for the Little Ones,» rediscovered by chance, she takes us on a refreshing journey where nature and animals become the heroes of each page.

This collection, designed for young readers, offers a poetic and tender view of the animal world, full of lightness and charming rhymes. The poems depict creatures with gentle and lively traits, like Pompon the kitten or Crabiotti the crab, finely capturing their essence and character. Far from being just a children's book, it also invites adults to immerse themselves in this simple and magical world, where each verse evokes a childhood memory or a sweet reflection on our connection with nature. This beautifully illustrated book is a space for escape, imagination, and bonding between generations. In an instant, «Poems for Little Ones» succeeds in reminding both young and old of the beauty of small things, while opening the door to lively and playful poetry. A true pleasure to share, without age limits. Like several of his works, this one is distributed only in schools, which is quite unfortunate... it remains to bribe a child to steal it! A.B

Coastal Challenge? Challenge Accepted!

It was the novelty of this season, the new 100% nature race proposed by Dream of Trail, the Coastal Challenge. From the beach of Baie Orientale passing through Cul de Sac to the Froussards trail and Mont-Vernon before returning to the starting point, 85 participants took the start of the event that combined physical performance and beautiful landscapes!

There was a lot of enthusiasm from the runners and walkers at the start of this course, which ultimately turned out to be quite challenging. In the 14 km race, the leading trio finished in a tight pack: Gaultier Mathieu de Fossey placed first overall in 1:11:45, ahead of Grégory Pigeon who finished in 1:13:04 (1st in the over 40 category) and Vincent Roucaute (1:13:34).

The first woman, Florentine Hope Rose (18th overall), completed her race in 1:30:57. Among the walkers, René Arnell finished first among men in 1:15:10, and Akua Codjo Sodokine was first among women in 1:17:48. In light of the success of this first edition, Dream Of Trail is already setting dates for next year. Kudos for the lovely plants given to the winners of each category, 100% nature! A.B

For you, Ladies!

The iconic «Saint-Martinoise» of the Avenir Club Sportif de Saint-Martin returns on March 7 for its 14th edition. In both running and walking versions, both 100% female and inclusive, the Saint-Martinoise connects generations and demonstrates that physical activity is beneficial for everyone.

You can indeed register individually, but also as a mother-daughter duo (from 14 years old). For those who want to ease back into it, the walking version on a 5km route in Marigot is particularly recommended. The start (4:30 PM) and finish will take place in the parking lot of Galisbay. To ensure a friendly atmosphere, a group warm-up is scheduled for 4:00 PM, along with a small Soca Fit challenge and the raffle drawing at 5:30 PM. This year, a plane ticket on Air Caraïbes is up for grabs! Registrations (€12) are open until March 5 at noon on sport-timing-caraibes.com (please note, it will not be possible to register directly on-site). The PPS (Health Prevention Pass) is mandatory for the race and for the walk for those not licensed by FFA and can be downloaded at pps.athle.fr.

The race numbers can be picked up on Friday, March 6 from 1:00 PM to 6:00 PM at Go Sport in Hope Estate or on Saturday, March 7 from 9:30 AM to 12:30 PM, still at Go Sport, but this time in Bellevue. For more information: Magali at 06 90 31 59 03 or Patrick at 06 90 75 16 85. A.B

Good news!

The repair work on the football field at the Albéric Richards Stadium in Sandy Ground has begun. The soil brought to the site by the community contractor is intended to be used to strengthen the field and replant new grass. The field will then be put into operation while the field at the Vanterpool Stadium in Marigot is being redone. Ultimately, the Albéric Richards Stadium will be fully rehabilitated.
