More than one million euros for priority neighborhood associations

On June 19, in the courtyard of the prefecture, representatives of the State, the Community, and fifty associations gathered for a ceremony dedicated to the signing of the Republican Commitment contract. In the presence of Prefect Cyrille Le Vély and President Louis Mussington, this event honored the associations funded as part of the city's policy.

Introduced by the law of August 24, 2021, the Republican Engagement Contract recalls the fundamental principles to which structures benefiting from public funding adhere. The signing associations commit to respecting the values of liberty, equality, fraternity, and secularism. While this signature is already required during grant applications, it is the subject of an official ceremony for the first time in Saint-Martin. Beyond its symbolic nature, the event highlighted the importance of the associative fabric in prio-

riety neighborhoods. "We are not signing papers today; we are signing a promise made to the children of Saint-Martin," declared Louis Mussington, praising the "partners" whose daily actions contribute to social cohesion in the territory.

FUNDS TO SUPPORT LOCAL INITIATIVES

This year, the State and the Collectivity are jointly dedicating over one million euros to finance around one hundred actions carried out in the priority neighborhoods of the island. These funds concern both associations and educational institutions operating in the sectors targeted by urban policy. Prefect Cyrille Le Vély reminded that these financial aids are awarded following calls for projects. He also emphasized the establishment of multi-year support to provide more resources to associations. "This meeting is meant to shine a light on you, to show what you do and to show that we support what you do," insisted the representative of the State. Through this ceremony, institutional partners praised the commitment of associative actors to the most vulnerable populations. An essential task to reduce inequalities and strengthen living together in Saint-Martin. L.G

June 18 Ceremony: Veterans unveil their new flag

In front of the Collectivity hotel, elected officials, state representatives, and residents commemorated, on Thursday, June 18, the 86th anniversary of General de Gaulle's call to Resistance. On this occasion, the Association of Veterans of Saint Martin presented its new flag.

On June 18, 1940, General de Gaulle called on the French to resist against the German occupation. A historic speech delivered on the airwaves of the BBC in London that continues to resonate far beyond the Old Continent. Since 2005, the Appeal of June 18 has been listed by UNESCO on the Memory of the World Register, which catalogs documents of universal documentary heritage. A statement still perceived today as a symbol of courage.

NATIONAL MEMORY AND SAINT MARTIN IDENTITY

In Saint Martin, to celebrate this anniversary date, following the speech by the State representative, Prefect Cyrille Le Vély, the youth were honored. A student first read an excerpt from the speech delivered by General de Gaulle during the appeal of June 18, then another performed the Marseillaise to conclude the ceremony. An event that was also marked by the presentation of the new flag of the Association of Veterans of Saint Martin. In recent years, the organization has undergone significant changes. At the end of 2024, the departure of the current president as well as that of the treasurer weakened its functioning. Under the leadership of Jean Richard, the current president of the association, a new board has been formed to ensure its sustainability.

"The association is rising from its ashes," summarizes Cyrille Mayet, vice president of the association. To mark this change, the members have adopted a new flag. "We aimed to reflect both the identity of Saint Martin and to have a strong marker of the fighting spirit," explains Cyrille Mayet. This symbolic object highlights several emblematic elements of the island. First, the hibiscus flower and the flamboyant tree recall the richness of the local flora, while the pelican, an iconic figure of Saint Martin, represents its fauna. The ocean, the sun, and the coastline evoke the Caribbean anchorage of the territory. Finally, the Adrian helmet sits at the center of this composition. "It is an emblematic helmet of the soldiers from 1914-1918 and more generally of the two world wars. Here, we chose to represent it in brown, like those worn by the French army in 1939-1945," emphasizes the vice president.

On the old flag, created in 1998 at the founding of the association, the sun and the beach were already depicted, but also a three-masted ship. A symbol that, according to the current leaders, does not have a strong enough meaning to represent the Saint Martin institution. Today, the association has 23 members. Based in Marigot, the organization continues its work of remembrance and hopes to welcome new members. It is open to former military personnel, but also to state agents, such as police officers, customs officers, or civilian staff. L.G

National Lifeguard Days: Sunday, June 28

A day to inform, learn, have fun... and above all support those who watch over our coasts all year round. On the occasion of the 10th edition of the National Lifeguards' Days, the SNSM station of Saint-Martin invites the public on Sunday, June 28, to the beach of Baie Orientale for a day of discovery, awareness, and free activities.

Volunteers from the SNSM, dedicated 365 days a year to maritime safety, will be at the heart of this friendly event aimed at all audiences. Young and old alike will be able to discover life-saving gestures, learn how to raise the alarm at sea, or even get introduced to marine knots at the association's booth. Several participatory activities will also punctuate the morning: kayaking introductions in partnership with Tropical Ride (10:00 to 10:45) or rescue techniques (from 10:00 to 11:45), followed by a small friendly competition. No special conditions are required, and everyone can participate, regardless of age. A highlight of the day will be a spectacular demonstration of sea rescue organized from 12:00 to 13:00.

An escape game to raise middle school students' awareness of the gendarmerie's missions

On Friday, June 19, nine sixth-grade students from Mont des Accords Middle School participated in a brand new type of exercise. Gathered in the multipurpose room, they took part in an investigative game designed by the National Gendarmerie.

Sensitize young generations to the profession of gendarme and carry out prevention against delinquency, this is the objective of this escape game. Funded to the tune of €16,000 by the prefecture, this innovative tool has been specially adapted to the territory. Already tested in mainland France, the concept incorporates here places and street names familiar to young Saint-Martinois. After a first test conducted with a sixth-grade class from the Roche Grève college in Moho, in Quartier d'Orléans, the system was presented to the students of Marigot in the presence of Prefect Cyrille Le Vély. "The idea is to raise awareness among the youngest about themes such as road safety, but also to make them think about what it means to be a good citizen and how to behave properly," emphasized the representative of the State. Equipped with tablets, the students are immersed in a real-life investigation. On their screens, the scenario begins with a traffic accident involving a scooter that fled after hitting a pedestrian. Divided into teams of three or four per tablet, the students represent different units of the gendarmerie. Brigade, intervention unit, or experts, the young investigators must analyze audio recordings, images, or even reconstruct a composite sketch to identify the suspect. An experience appreciated by the middle schoolers. "It was like a big puzzle; we had to find the clues to arrive at the result," jokes Marquis. An intellectual exercise that also pleased his classmate Westley. "You have to move forward as a team; it showed us how to work in a group," he states. Indeed, each team must collaborate with its neighbors to progress in the investigation. The game, created with bilingual instructions, lasts less than an hour to easily fit into school time. For Adjutant Didier, officiating at the Family Protection House, this tool offers a "fun and modern" approach to prevention. "It allows for opening the debate on certain issues such as violence or harassment and shows another use of digital tools," states the representative of the law enforcement. An experience deemed conclusive by the organizers, who are now planning to roll out this escape game to other schools on the island from the start of the next academic year.

L.G

Conducted in real conditions, it will allow the public to better understand the interventions that rescuers face throughout the year. All of this is free and accessible to everyone, with only lunch at the restaurant Le Wai being paid (25€ per person with a glass of wine), but it is worth it as it is a sardine feast, and all profits from the lunch will be fully donated to the Saint-Martin station to help fund its rescue, prevention, and training missions. Throughout the day, volunteers will be present to engage with the public, share their experiences, and showcase their commitment. Visitors will also be able to support the station by stopping by the SNSM shop, where sales directly contribute to funding operations. A great opportunity to discover the behind-the-scenes of sea rescue, adopt good safety reflexes, meet passionate volunteers, and spend a moment that is both useful, informative, and friendly by the water.

Mini-Enterprise Competition: determined future entrepreneurs

Change of format and new establishment for this 2nd edition of the mini-business competition organized by the Interprofessional Consular Chamber of Saint Martin (CCISM). Last Thursday, the two teams from the 3rd Segpa class of Mont des Accords College participated in the final phase; competing were two projects «Coral Under Water» and «MJJL Jewelry.»

Cette initiative is fully aligned with the missions of the CCISM, particularly through the Local School-Business Committee (CLEE) of Saint Martin. The first initiative of its kind in the Caribbean, the CLEE was born from the signing of a charter between the Rectorate and the CCISM. It aims to strengthen the ties between the educational system and the economic world, while providing young people with better visibility on professional realities. Last year, it was the Robert Weinum high school that participated in this unique experience. This year, a partnership has been established with the Mont des Accords middle school. Another notable change is that the presentation of several projects in the form of a mini-exhibition has been abandoned in favor of a competition between two projects that the students have worked on for several months.

A REFLECTION OVER TIME

Like business leaders, the students had five months to develop their project, structure it, assess its feasibility, improve it, and present it. To do this, they have been supported since February by the team from the business support service and the employment and training department of the CCISM. They then made a first presentation as part of Spotlight and were judged on the best pitch. On June 18 at the CCISM, they defended their projects during the finals before a jury of professionals composed of Jeanne Vanterpool, 1st Vice President of the CCISM, Daisy Vaillant, CEO of GESTAPART and manager of the Prismorizons association, Loïc Lagoutte from Nozin Prod, and Myriame Paquin, a business leader in events.

CORAL UNDER WATER OR MJJL JEWELRY?

The first project is a very original concept of a panoramic aquarium restaurant in Friar's Bay, offering a unique immersion into the marine world. The students acknowledge that this ambitious project is a long-term endeavor and will need several more months of work before coming to fruition. The second, MJJL Jewelry, offers customizable jewelry in gold and stainless steel with the slogan «Look better, shine better in SXM.» More traditional, yet also very ambitious in its development, this second project is already viable, which is why it won the favor of the jury. Following the deliberations, the small team indeed won the Spotlight Award for «best pitch» and the Audience Award, and they left with vlogging kits from Nozin PROD; a gift to help them develop their communication.

The second Spotlight prize, awarded to the second group, was a membership in the Prismorizons association, which will allow them to benefit from comprehensive support in their educational and entrepreneurial journey. Unsurprisingly, the 1st prize of the competition was awarded to MJJL Jewelry. Both teams were rewarded with JBL headphones for the first place and earbuds for the second place, provided by the Rotary Club of Saint Martin North. The young people in the territory have plenty of ideas, often innovative, and we can't wait to see the fruition of such projects.

Biodiversity Contest: Happy School dethrones Emile Choisy

The champions have changed sides. After winning the first edition in 2025, Émile Choisy School had to relinquish its title this year to Happy School, victorious in a fiercely contested second edition of the Great Biodiversity Contest.

Organized by the Saint Martin Nature Reserve Management Association (AGRNSM), this educational competition brought together eight schools this year: Aline Hanson, Émile Choisy, Hervé Williams, Marie-Amélie Leydet, Happy School, Elie Gibbs, Clair Saint-Maximin, and Marie-Antoinette Richards. This is an increase as only six schools participated in the first edition. The day began with the performance of the Saint Martin anthem, followed by a welcome speech from Anne-Karine Fleming, president of the Nature Reserve. A short but appreciated ceremony, as the students were eager to get to the heart of the matter.

INTENSE DUELS

The competition takes the form of a game inspired by Trivial Pursuit, entirely dedicated to the environment and biodiversity. Created by AGRNSM and produced using the Nature Reserve's 3D printer, it pits the schools against each other in duels determined by a draw. The goal: to collect as many petals as possible by answering the questions posed correctly and as quickly as possible. The students, from the CM1 and CM2 classes, once again demonstrated their perfect knowledge on the subject, knowledge they acquire throughout the year thanks to their teachers who implement educational projects around major themes to enable them to gain a solid understanding of nature and ecosystem preservation. This year, the suspense lasted until the end. Happy School ultimately triumphed over Émile Choisy and Aline Hanson by just a tiny point. A minimal gap that reflects the particularly uniform level of the eight competing teams. "Until the end of the competition, each school could hope to win," emphasize the teams from the Nature Reserve. Throughout the day, the students indeed showed concentration, speed, and remarkable teamwork to answer the numerous questions. This involvement reflects the growing interest of younger generations in environmental issues. An interest that the Nature Reserve intends to maintain, and it has also organized for the first time this year a training day on biodiversity for biology teachers, to enhance awareness across all schools.

At the end of the competition, each school left with a trophy recognizing its participation, but the largest and most beautiful went to Happy School, which will keep it until the next edition where it will be up for grabs again, as this event, organized with the support of EDF, has become in just two years a highly anticipated event in the island's schools. This is a good indicator of the interest of new generations in environmental issues and a hope for the future of the planet.

Racket in hand, discovering badminton

In Marigot, the Saint-Martin Badminton Club welcomes enthusiasts of this sport at the Jean-Louis Vanterpool Stadium sports hall. Guided by three certified coaches, both children and adults engage in recreational and competitive play.

Padel, tennis, ping-pong, racket sports have been popular in recent years. But while some enjoy hitting the ball, others prefer the shuttlecock. In Marigot, badminton players gather three times a week at the Jean-Louis Vanterpool sports hall. The Saint-Martin Badminton Club currently has 73 members, who compete in singles or doubles matches. "We have people who play for fun but also training sessions for competitors," explains the president of the association, Angélique Armougom.

BETWEEN LEARNING AND PERFORMANCE

On Wednesdays, Fridays, and Saturdays, enthusiasts of this sport meet on the courts. Children have slots from 6:30 PM to 7:30 PM on Wednesdays and Fridays, while adults play from 7:30 PM to 9:30 PM. On Saturdays, from 10 AM to 1 PM, a recreational slot is open to all badminton players. Accessible to children from the age of 10, badminton helps develop agility, endurance, and concentration. With their feet firmly planted on the ground, racket in hand, players keep their eyes fixed on the shuttlecock, ready to send it back into the opponent's court to try to score a point. Although the club cannot host competitions due to a lack of closed infrastructure, its competitors regularly participate in tournaments in the region. "For Pentecost, we went to Guadeloupe with five young people and five adults," specifies Angélique Armougom.

For those who wish to join, registrations for the club take place from September until October 15. For an annual membership and a license, expect to pay €130 for children and €160 for adults.

If you missed the registrations, don't worry; you can pay per session at the rate of €5. For more information, email: sxmbadclub@gmail.com or call 06 90 66 77 37.
