The Blue Week... to make it last

Blue Week is dedicated to our elders, to those who have built a part of the history of the territory and who still have much to pass on. It was launched Monday morning at Bethany Home, in the presence of Audrey Gil, Chair of the Board of Directors, Michel Petit, 4th Vice President of the Community in charge of solidarity, health, and families, as well as many professionals in elder care and representatives of associations.

Mr. Urbain Javois, 100 springs, in the company of Audrey Gil, chairwoman of the board of directors of the EHPAD Bethany Home, Placed this year under the theme "Connecting All Ages in Engaged Territories!", the week is intended to promote meetings between generations and to remind us of the place of older adults in society. A commitment that was realized from this first morning, with the presence of associations, professionals, and also children who came to meet the residents of the nursing home. Henry Nagapin, director of Bethany Home, wished for this opening to be a significant moment in the lives of the residents and to show them the place they occupy in our lives. Because beyond the activities offered for a few days, the challenge is to make this solidarity between generations a lasting reality.

A MEMORY TO PRESERVE

Saint-Martin currently has three centenarians: two ladies at the very respectable age of 101 years, and Mr. Urbain Javois, who celebrated his 100th birthday last May. He came to enjoy this morning accompanied by his granddaughter. A century of life, but also as many memories, experiences, and stories to pass on. The residents of Bethany Home are the memory of Saint-Martin; they have held very different jobs, witnessed the transformation of the island, accumulated heaps of memories, and still have much to say... to ensure that all this does not fade away, it is important to listen to their testimonies. With this in mind, «storytellers» will soon come to the establishment to collect their narratives and preserve this memory. This transmission also involves the younger generation. Thanks to an agreement signed with the National Education, the little ones from the Chez Elmer nursery school, as well as the older ones from the Marie-Amélie Leydet primary school, were able to participate in this first day. Questions, exchanges, and shared moments allowed the children to meet the residents and, above all, to discover all that they can still offer them.

As Audrey Gil reminded us, Blue Week should not just be a succession of activities, but above all an opportunity to create connections. This morning was a beautiful illustration of that: passing on to the younger generation the taste for meeting, listening, and respect, while giving the elders the place they deserve. A spirit that would especially benefit from enduring well beyond a single week.

Flag of Saint Martin: 42 projects under consideration

The competition to create the future flag of Saint Martin, launched last August as part of the My Saint Martin Flag project, officially closed on September 30. A final clap that marks the beginning of a new phase, that of studying the 42 proposals submitted to the Collectivity.

« This competition reflects a true collective mobilization around the identity of our territory, » says the Cultural Action Department of the Collectivity, the project leader. Indeed, with so many creations, it is proof that the subject inspires. But now it is up to the jury to meet to examine each one of them. Only ten candidates will be selected, and their proposals will then be submitted to a public vote that will determine the three finalists. The details of this vote will be communicated soon on the Facebook page «My Saint-Martin Flag» or on the website www.mysaintmartinflag.com. The final choice will be up to the elected officials of the Collectivity and must be adopted in the territorial council. The official presentation of the Saint-Martin flag is scheduled for December.

Gastronomy Festival: which will delight your taste buds?

In July, we had a taste of the program for the 6th edition of the Gastronomy Festival, although we did not know which chefs would be orchestrating the various culinary moments alongside the local ambassador chefs. The veil was lifted last Friday, in the presence of the event partners, during a dinner at the Maison Mère restaurant in Baie Orientale, winner of the Gourmet Star category in 2025.

the essential BBQ trio, Kevin Bludso, Martin Delisle, and Thierry Cornuet, and by the two ambassador chefs of Saint-Martin: Amanda Whit, chef of the restaurant Soualiga Lime, and François Baly, former chef of the kitchens of the Samanna, now a private chef. To accompany the dishes they will prepare, Daphnée Soon, a sommelier and mixology expert, and Arthur Sutley, a cocktail and spirits expert, will of course be part of the event, and others may join them, as invitations are not yet finished.

land, as well as during the cooking demonstrations, which are returning this year to the gastronomy village stage on November 14 and 15. They will also be found in the jury for the various competitions, including that of the best establishments on the island in the categories of Authentic Star, Beach Star, Gourmet Star, City Star, and best dessert, along with new additions this edition: best Johnny Cake and best pizza. Restaurateurs who have not yet participated can sign up, as the deadline has been exceptionally extended.

THE FESTIVAL TABLES

All these wonderful people will gather at the «festival tables,» a meeting held every evening in a different neighborhood of the is-

The festival will kick off on November 8 with a festive brunch at Loterie Farm before its official launch on November 10 at 6 PM on Grand Case Boulevard. The activities will follow one after another... and the list is long! Complete program at www.le97150.fr. Reservations: www.festival-st-martin.com. A.B

One knew it, this year the sponsor is the Guadeloupean Jimmy Bibrac, master restaurateur and chef of Ô Z'épices for 14 years. On the product side, it's the coconut, a symbol of the islands and exoticism, that will be the star ingredient and, from November 11 to 22, will become a must-have on plates, from appetizers to desserts. But in the kitchens, during workshops or activities, who will tantalize the taste buds of food lovers?

CHEFS, MIXOLOGISTS, AND CULINARY ADVISORS ON HAND

It is Alain Warth, who since the first edition of the Festival, initiated the arrival of starred or renowned chefs, to make the festival shine, which has aimed since its creation to make Saint-Martin the reference destination of the Caribbean. This dynamic continues today with a melting pot of chefs, reflecting the territory's gastronomy, both French and Caribbean, but also with flavors from elsewhere. For this edition, the Tourism Office has once again partnered with Marmiton, ensuring the presence of Arnaud Viel and Vincent Ferniot.

The first is based at the Hostellerie de la Renaissance in Argentan, Normandy, and has held a Michelin star since 2016 and three GaultMillau toques. The second, Vincent Ferniot, is a prominent food journalist who has long worked on television and radio. They will be part of the delegation of invited chefs alongside Jason Peru, a Caribbean chef, Kevin d'Andrea, finalist of Top Chef 2015 and founder of Foliepop's, Laïla Freedom Agnès, a Saint-Martin chef and pastry chef, Larissa Jude, a chef and trainer, and Miguel Jean-Noël, a Guadeloupean chef. A great lineup completed by

In Saint-Barth too ...

From November 9 to 15, 2026, the St Barh Gourmet Festival returns for its 13th edition focused on flavors, encounters, and creativity. For one week, 14 renowned chefs will come to share the kitchens of the island's resident chefs, with a common desire: to showcase their universe, blend influences, and imagine unique experiences around the table. To be discovered in twelve restaurants on the island: Christopher, Cheval Blanc, Barthélemy, Esprit, Nikki Beach, Bar des Prés, Manapany, Fouquet's, Fish Corner, Grain de sel, Cantina, and Bagatelle.

Start of the trials for elected officials: a first postponement for Louis Mussington

President Mussington was summoned to the Saint-Martin court on Monday morning for the first hearing in a series involving him in several cases. Absent from the hearing, he was to be judged for «illegal taking of interests.» His lawyer requested a postponement, arguing the lack of time to prepare the defense.

The facts for which he is accused involve the hiring of five family members as Community agents, between May 20, 2022, and August 24, 2024. His lawyer, Master Nicolas, recalling that this case ultimately concerns five individuals and seven contracts, requested a postponement at the beginning of the hearing. There are two reasons for this: the absence of Louis Mussington, who has been declared unwell, and the late delivery of the copy of the proceedings. The copy was only obtained on September 9 by the counsel who had to go to retrieve it, as his emails from June and July went unanswered. This request was countered by the prosecutor, Élodie Rouchouse, who argued that the President's counsel should have reacted to the error messages received following the sending of her first email on June 8, to an address belonging to someone who is now retired. She believes that four weeks is sufficient to prepare a defense in such a case. Regarding the absence of Louis Mussington, she expressed surprise, as she saw him in the press at a ceremony on Friday night and "he did not look sick." Furthermore, she pointed out that no medical certificate had been submitted to the court. She requested a warrant for his arrest so that he could be tried that same day. Master Nicolas, himself unwell, pressed the issue: "On September 9, when I went there, I was told that it was the correct email address and it exactly matched the one we were instructed to use for the postponement request." He finds it unreasonable that they want to judge his client under these conditions. The hearing was suspended for several minutes to verify the validity of the email address. The prosecutor's statements were confirmed; an error message was indeed sent. However, the request from July 22 was received but not processed by the court. The court decided to postpone the case until January 11, 2027. At the end of this shortened hearing, the judge insisted on the imperative presence of the President of the Community on January 11 to answer for the facts in a public courtroom and in the presence of journalists, otherwise "the court will draw the consequences." The President is again expected in court this Wednesday, October 7, this time with his four vice-presidents to respond to accusations of favoritism in public contracts and misappropriation of public assets.

Marie-Noëlle Jardon : the interface between the gendarmerie and social partners

Marie-Noëlle Jardon was appointed as a social worker in the gendarmerie (ISG) this Friday, October 2; a key position that ensures the link between victims of violence and the various institutions that can support them. This reopening of the position was made possible thanks to a tripartite agreement between the Prefecture, the Gendarmerie, and Trait d'Union - France Victimes.

One domestic violence incident is recorded per day in Saint-Martin. In the first half of 2026, domestic violence (DV) accounts for 35% of incidents on the territory, including 26% of domestic violence cases. When adding physical assaults, this represents half of the violence observed on the island (and there are those that go unreported). Other alarming figures show that 24% of rapes and sexual violence occur within families; four new cases of sexual violence against minors were handled by the Marigot police in just the last week of September. This phenomenon is not specific to Saint-Martin, as sexual violence is increasing at the national level (+15%), as are rapes or attempted rapes (+15%) during the same period. The challenge, after filing a complaint, is to direct victims to individuals capable of supporting them and especially to accompany them through a sometimes very complicated process. This is the role of the social worker in the gendarmerie. This position existed until November 2025 but was eliminated due to lack of funding. Saint-Martin thus became the only territory in France without a social worker in the gen-darmerie. Thanks to the action of the Prefecture, which finances €45,000 of the €50,000 that represents the salary and social charges of the position within France Victimes and the gendarmerie, which provides the premises of the Family Protection House (MPF), the position has been filled again. The three-year partnership agreement (2026-2029) was signed on October 2 by Cyrille Le Vély, Prefect of Saint-Barthélemy and Saint-Martin, Lieutenant Colonel Hugues Loyez, Commander of the gendarmerie, and Olivier Canale-Fatou, Director of the Trait d'Union - France Victimes 978 association.

AN ESSENTIAL MISSION

The device, which also acts on prevention, is essential in the territory. The elimination of the position at the end of last year had an immediate effect, particularly on the attendance at the Women's House, due to a lack of guidance. Marie-Noëlle Jardon, who held this position from 2023 to 2025, is therefore resuming her duties and will now operate in the premises of the MPF, an entity of the gendarmerie designed to make victims feel comfortable.

Her mission is to ensure the social support of vulnerable individuals, those accused, or victims of domestic violence by informing and directing them to appropriate structures in connection with the social services of the Community. Weekly meetings are scheduled with the two gendarmes who work at the MPF, and the work is also done within the France Victimes team. The goal is to provide multidisciplinary support to all victims. She will also intervene once or twice a month in Saint-Barthélemy.

Patricio Carty, Knight of the National Order of Merit

Patricio Carty received the insignia of the National Order of Merit on Friday, October 2, in the presence of Prefect Cyrille Le Vély, President Louis Mussington, and his loved ones. A distinction that recognizes over 30 years of commitment to serving the population and the territory.

This is not a job I accomplished alone. It's a team effort, done for our youth above all." It was with these unifying words, in a poignant speech filled with humility, that Patricio Carty received his award at the restaurant "Chez Clément" in Sandy Ground, amidst the applause of his colleagues and numerous officials who came to show their appreciation. Born in 1976 in Saint Martin, Patricio Carty grew up developing a strong attachment to his island. From a young age, his athletic talents were recognized: at the age of 7, he distinguished himself in soccer (Junior Stars) and basketball (Boys N'Yard) and joined the selection of young hopes from Saint Martin. At 20, he joined the town hall as a technical agent in the sports department and continued his mission when the territory became an overseas community in 2007. However, in 2005, his sports ascent faced a sudden halt when multiple fractures to his leg sidelined him from competition. At the age of 29, his perseverance allowed him to take another path, that of cycling, where he quickly excelled again. He then represented Saint Martin throughout the Caribbean, notably during the Overseas Departments Championship. Recognizable by his famous red jersey, he was nicknamed "Blade the Red Jet" and became an emblematic figure in Saint Martin sports. In 2014, concerned about the future of the youth in the Sandy Ground neighborhood, he decides to focus on their training in cycling. Two years later, by co-founding the Bike Club, he does not yet realize the extent that this place will take over time: a true breeding ground for talent and activities, it allows boys and girls from Sandy Ground aged 6 to 17 to have access to equipment and gear, and to practice while benefiting from his valuable advice. Under his leadership, many young people from priority neighborhoods can perform and travel at the same time, from Saint Martin to the Hexagon, passing through Guadeloupe and Anguilla, discovering new perspectives for the future. Patricio Carty's commitment to this youth does not stop at sports practice: in his free time, he offers educational and recreational outings for children, such as discovering and exploring the forests and rivers of Guadeloupe, thus providing them with dreams and ambition. As the Prefect reminded during his speech, the National Order of Merit, established by General de Gaulle in 1963, rewards those who, through their commitment and outstanding services, contribute to the moral, intellectual, and cultural greatness of the Nation: «You are a man who has made sports not only a passion but a tremendous tool for social cohesion.»
